Two notes:

(1) these are correlations at best. Month-to-month K/D swings have a hundred causes besides crosshair, so don't take #3/#4 too seriously

(2) the graphic has cs2settings.com on it because that's my site (where I process and store the demos). Just being upfront

Let me know if you're interested in any follow up stats - or something third! Happy to provide

I'm guessing AW is one of those people who change their crosshair color based on what map they're on to help with visibility. I can't see any other explanation for that stat

Some believe that a different crosshair every time prevents your eyes/mind from getting used to it and getting complacent/lazy from familiarity and a fresh crosshair every time could keep you aiming more intentionally instead of by habit

But it's likely just placebo and confirmation bias (I used to feel the same way)

The data basically confirms this based on the visuals of his crosshair changes (we don't actually know right) but seems you might be hitting it on the nail here

His 24 various crosshairs during the month decode to 20 different geometries (ignoring color). Only 4 of the 24 shared a shape with another

The rest were each a genuinely different crosshair. Size 0.8 to 3, gap -7 to 0, thickness 0 to 1.5, sometimes with a dot. His most-used shape was only 11.5% of his April maps

People used to deatchmatch on different sensitivities for a bit (and probably still do) before their normal warmup routine for this exact reason. I remember steel talking about doubling his sens for 10-15 minutes just so you're forced to think about your aim.

Some people (like me) are just autistic about crosshairs. I switch mine like every two games. It's gotten really bad.

I'm at the point where, the crosshairs I use the most, I put in a .cfg file in my config so I can just type "exec crosshair1" in console, and the ones I use the most I made a bindtoggle for, so that it cycles through about 10 crosshairs or so.

From: CSGO-QmSSL-9RXSe-iurLG-pdsPO-6UDND
To: CSGO-MA9nY-pLioV-21rFb-MkYxO-jKchQ

Quite a significant change actually in geometry and color

Added r3salt's here: <https://www.reddit.com/r/GlobalOffensive/comments/1taeb36/comment/olc77o2/> blamef's change clearly states that green crosshair is the worst, never go there!

Exact same crosshair, just different color

The ultimate crosshair, but I wish valve would add more ways to customize crosshairs, it feels like it could be better!

Ps. Please bring cl_crosshairstyle 1 back 🙏
